ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Lynn F Davidson MD is an Associate Professor of Pediatrics at the Children's Hospital at Montefiore (CHAM), Albert Einstein College of Medicine and board certified in Pediatrics, Neurodevelopmental Disabilities, and Developmental-Behavioral Pediatrics. Dr. Davidson's is a clinician educator whose focus is on treating children with special healthcare needs, particularly those with autism, attention deficit disorder, cerebral palsy, children with medical complexity, and on improving the medical transition of youth with and without special health care needs to the adult providers in a primary care teaching practice.

Her clinical experience with youth with special health care needs and their families has led to her passion to improve the healthcare transition process for special needs pediatric patients. This has become the focus of her research and teaching, as well as her national work with the American Academy of Pediatrics as well as the Academic Pediatric Association.
